Circle Drive and Terrace Drive are two dead end streets accessed by Terrace Drive from the north side of the busy thoroughfare of Nursery Road. The majority of the houses in this small, quiet enclave were built in an identical form in the early-to-mid 1950s. Intervening lots contain more modern infill. The prevalent house type is a two-story side-gabled dwelling with a two-bay shed dormer across the front. The three-bay first story has a central door flanked by large window openings. These are fenestrated either with paired windows, or a single picture window comprised of one, three, or five lights. All appear to have synthetic siding of various types. One is clad with brick veneer. Later attached garages and small additions add further distinctions to the originally identical dwellings.

The buildings in the Circle Drive Survey District do not appear to meet any of the criteria necessary for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. The houses are common early-1950s dwellings of no particular historic significance, and there is some degree of later infill. Thus, this survey district is recommended not eligible.
